

Once again someone in the marketplace who possesses neither the energy nor the intelligence to compete successfully is trying to have their competition legislated out of existence or severely restricted. Please tell the NAB to spend their money and energy on improving the broadcast product they offer. The only reason I listen to radio is because XM is available to listen to. Restricting XM is not going to draw me back to the NAB's pathetic product.